

ABSTRACT

An air-to-air heat exchanger is simply and easily installed in an electronics cabinet in the field by using a template to form an air exit opening that corresponds with an air inlet opening of the heat exchanger, and an air inlet opening that corresponds with an air exit opening of the heat exchanger. Once the openings have been formed, the heat exchanger is mounted to the outside of the cabinet, such as on a side wall or a door of the cabinet.

10